

The Workshop That Sells

Come up with a topic, build the session, fill the room, and turn a warm crowd into paying customers in a single hour.

AUTHOR

Daris Wilson

SERIES

HMYLB · Part 4

SITE

fromthefloorup.co

WHY THIS PLAYBOOK EXISTS

Teach the result, earn the sale.

A workshop is the highest-converting room you can run, because teaching lets you prove the result and ask for the sale in the same hour.

When you teach, you give value first, you prove you know your craft, and the offer at the end lands as the obvious next step instead of a pitch. We ran our challenge info sessions this way and closed almost the whole room into a paying offer on the spot. The session did the selling, and the slides did the convincing.

This playbook gets you from no idea to a workshop on the calendar that fills and converts. Four moves, in order. Work them top to bottom and you will have your topic, your session, your promotion, and your follow-up ready to run.

THE FOUR MOVES

- Pick the topic. Find the overlap between an outcome your prospects crave and something you can teach cold.
- Build the session. A slide-by-slide structure that teaches, proves the result, and leads to one clear offer.
- Fill the room. Pull every channel you have to drive registrations, free or paid.
- Convert and follow up. Make the offer with urgency, then turn every attendee into a tracked contact.

Run a free version to grow your list, or a paid version to filter for serious buyers and convert. Same structure, different job in the funnel.

MOVE 1 · PICK THE TOPIC

Teach what they already want.

The best workshop topic sits where a result your prospects crave meets something you can teach without notes. Find that overlap and the room fills itself.

List both sides, then circle where they cross. The crossing point is your topic.

Outcomes they crave	What you can teach cold
---	---

Name it for the outcome

Title the session for the result or the surprising reason behind it, not the topic itself. "Why Carbs Are Making You Fat" beats "A Nutrition Workshop" because it names a fear and a fix in one line. Lead with the benefit, keep it concrete, and make a stranger want to be in the room.

BUSINESS TYPE	A TITLE THAT SELLS THE OUTCOME
Home Service	The 5 Things Quietly Lowering Your Home's Value
Restaurant / Retail	Cook Restaurant-Level Pasta at Home in One Night
Personal Service	Drop a Size in 6 Weeks Without Living in the Gym
Professional Service	How to Buy Your First Home in [City] in 90 Days

One topic, one outcome, one room. If you cannot say who walks out better and how, keep refining the title.

MOVE 2 · BUILD THE SESSION · THE SLIDE STRUCTURE

Build it to sell from the stage.

A selling workshop teaches something real and walks toward one offer. Here is the slide order that does both, with proof carried the whole way through.

THE SLIDE-BY-SLIDE STRUCTURE

- 1. The promise. Open on the outcome they came for, stated plainly, so they know the hour is worth it.
- 2. Who you are, fast. One slide on why you have the right to teach this. Keep it short and let the results speak.
- 3. The problem. Name the pain that sits between them and the outcome, in their own words.
- 4. The framework. Teach your method in 3 to 5 steps. Give real value here, enough that they could act on it alone.
- 5. Proof on every teaching slide. A before-and-after or a result beside each point, so the promise is on the screen the whole time.
- 6. One real story. Walk through a single customer's journey from stuck to result. The audience sees someone who looks like them.
- 7. Who it's for, who it's not for. Name both. Calling out the wrong fit makes the right fit lean in.
- 8. The offer. What they get, what it costs, what is included, framed as the fastest path to the outcome you just taught.
- 9. Urgency and scarcity. Limited spots, a real deadline, and a reason to act tonight instead of later.
- 10. The ask. Tell them exactly what to do to sign up, right now, and make it simple to do in the room.

Build proof into the deck before anything else. Pull your best before-and-afters, results, and screenshots first, then write the teaching around them.

MOVE 2 · BUILD THE SESSION · THE FILTER AND THE OFFER

Charge a small fee to filter for buyers.

For a paid info session, a small refundable fee weeds out the tire kickers and packs the room with people who are already serious.

We charged $29 to attend our challenge info sessions. It was fully refundable, 100% money back with no hassle, returned at the end if you did not join and applied to the challenge if you did. The fee was a filter, and anyone who paid to sit down had already raised their hand, so the room converted far better.

THE REFUNDABLE-FEE FILTER

- Keep it small. Enough to mean something, low enough that a serious prospect does not blink. Our number was $29.
- Make it fully refundable. 100% money back at the end of the night if they do not move forward, no hassle and no hoops.
- Apply it to the purchase. If they join on the spot, the fee comes off their first payment, so saying yes feels like a discount.
- Say what it is for. Tell them plainly it is there to keep the room serious. That framing attracts the buyers and repels the browsers.

Make one clear offer

Pick a single offer and make it the obvious next step from what you just taught. One price, one deadline, one thing to do. A confused room never buys, so resist stacking three options.

THE ON-THE-SPOT OFFER

- One package, named. The thing that delivers the outcome you spent the hour teaching.
- A reason to decide tonight. A sign-up bonus, the fee credit, or a spot that closes when the seats fill.
- A simple way to say yes. A form, a QR code, or a table at the back, ready before you reach the ask.

MOVE 3 · FILL THE ROOM

Pull every channel to drive sign-ups.

An empty room cannot convert. Fill it the same way we filled ours, with everything you own, everyone who already trusts you, and paid reach on top.

Owned · free, start here

Email your list and send SMS to anyone who opted in. Pin the registration post to your social profiles, and add the event to your Google Business Profile and the listings from Part 3. These cost nothing and reach the warmest people you have.

Earned · borrow trust

Ask current customers or members to bring a friend, and open a handful of guest spots to make it easy. Line up a partner business that shares your customer to cross-promote to their list. We go deep on partnerships and referrals in Part 6.

Paid · amplify what works

Run Meta and Google ads pointing to a simple registration page, then retarget everyone who visited but did not sign up. Paid reach is the topic of Part 5, and a workshop registration is one of the cleanest things you can advertise.

A 3-week promotion timeline

- 3 weeks out. Announce to your list, open registration, and start the ads.
- 1 week out. Push hard, share the proof and the agenda, remind people the seats are limited.
- 2 to 3 days out. Lean into urgency, last seats, and turn on retargeting.
- Day of. Send a morning reminder and an hour-before nudge with the link or the address.

Copy that gets them to register now.

Limited seats and a real deadline do the heavy lifting. Adapt these to your topic, your number, and your dates, and keep the promises honest.

META AD

Local [city] [who they are], this one is for you. On [date] I am teaching [outcome] in one session. Seats are capped at [number] so the room stays small. We hold your spot with a $29 fee that is fully refundable at the end, and it comes off your enrollment if you join. Tap to grab a seat before they are gone.

EMAIL · SUBJECT + BODY

Subject: [number] seats, [date], how to [outcome]

I am running [title] on [date], and I am keeping it to [number] seats on purpose. You will walk out knowing exactly how to [outcome]. Your $29 reserves the seat, comes straight back at the end if it is not for you, and applies to your enrollment if it is. Once the seats fill, registration closes. Save your spot here: [link].

SMS

[First name], [number] seats left for [title] on [date]. $29 holds your spot, fully refundable. Register: [link]

LAST-CALL (2 TO 3 DAYS OUT)

Final seats for [date]. After these fill, the next session is [next date or "not on the calendar yet"]. If you have been meaning to [outcome], this is the room. Reserve now: [link]

Only claim scarcity that is real. If the seats are not actually limited, do not say they are. Honest urgency converts and keeps your name clean.

MOVE 4 · CAPTURE AND FOLLOW UP · THEN BUILD IT

Keep every name, then follow up.

The room is only worth the effort if you walk away with the contacts. Capture everyone, then follow up within 48 hours while the face is still fresh.

CAPTURE AND FOLLOW-UP TEMPLATES

- Capture on the way in. A registration form or a quick sign-in gets you name, email, and phone before the session starts.
- Joined on the spot: "Welcome in. Here is what happens next, [first step], and here is how to reach me if you need anything before then."
- Came but did not join: "Great having you [date]. The offer holds until [deadline], and your $29 still applies if you decide to jump in. Want me to save your spot?"
- Registered but no-show: "Missed you [date]. I am running it again on [date], want me to hold you a seat? Your fee carries over."

Build it this week

1 Doer

Pick one topic from the overlap worksheet, set a date in the next 30 days, and decide the single offer you will make at the end.

2 Manager

Build the proof. Pull your best before-and-afters and results into the deck, and assign who fills the room from each channel.

3 Owner CEO

Decide whether the refundable-fee filter fits your model, and stand up the capture and 48-hour follow-up system so no attendee is ever lost.

Teach something worth their time, put your proof on every slide, and make one clear offer before they leave the room.